

Abstract of the Disclosure

In a method for fabricating an optical circuit, a mirror element with a protection film formed within a die of a semiconductor is connected to a substrate at a predetermined position. The mirror element with the protection film connected to the substrate is peeled from the die of the semiconductor. The protection film is removed to expose a reflection surface of a reflection film of the mirror element.